DESERET EVENING NEWS | COUNCILMEN NOW POSE AS FARMERS

Discuss Proposition to Mow Down Hay in Parley's Canyon.

BOUQUETS ARE EXCHANGED.

Mr. Robertson and Dr. Reatty Pay EEach Other Flowery Compliments -Not Settled.

Hay was the star feature of last night's council program-not hay generally, but simply the crop which has been allowed to grow to a fine state of perfection in Parley's canyon, and which a few weeks ago was recoinmended as the one thing that would prove the salvation of the water in Parley's when the thirsty earth is parched in the dog days of summer. Chairman Hewlett, of the public grounds committee, and Land and Water Commissioner Vesterfield made a little trip up the canyon on Sunday and came to the conclusion that it was high time to cut the luxuriant crop of alfalfa, timothy and red top, of which there were some 235 acres that would soon be going to seed. Moreover the marketing of this crop would bring in the neighborhood of $1,000 to the city, and on the other hand if allowed to dry out where it grew there would be imminent danger of the crop catching fire and the canyon being denuded of trees Accordingly Hewlett ofand brush. fered a resolution instructing the city recorder to advertise for bids for the first cutting of the hay, to be opened June 18. The hay was to be baled on the ground and all of it was to be re-moved by Suptember 1st. But the matter was not to be permitted to go through so smoothly as this and Robertson assuming his favorite position in the passage between his desk and Councilman Davis' began in his favorite air of suppressed emotion "Mr. President, I am surprised that Salt Lake City after expending $70,000 in clearing the farms out of Parley's canyon in order to preserve the purity of the water in the creek, should now be so inconsistent as to go into the farming business itself. To cut and bale hay in the canyon will necessitate the presence of horses, and horses cannot be taken into the canyon without befouling the stream. The next proposition will be that the city rent farms. The best thing to do would be to let the hay grow wild.

Hewlett could not see how the can-yon would be befouled if they hay vere cut and baled on the ground, and he called in the testimony of the land and water commissioner to bear out his heory that there was danger of fire unless the hay were cut.

Dr. Beatty took Hewlett's view of the case. He could not see that there would be any great danger of befouling the vater by cutting and baling the hay. Robertson then moved as an amendment to the resolution that the land and water commissioner be instructed to purchase a horse-power lawn mower e not to exceed $250 to cut all the hay and wild grass in the canyon so as to protect the watershed from fire, and then he got in a gid at Beatty. "I think," said he, "if the chairman of the sanitary committee would get around to council sessions more regularly and pay more attention to city affairs he would be better posted on matters generally."

"Perhaps, if some people paid less at-tention to city affairs it might be better for the city," smilingly retorted Dr.

Councilman Thomas then moved that the matter go over to a special meeting to be held on Friday night, and the mo-

Hewlett introduced another resolution empowering the chairman of the finance committee to employ a competent auctioneer to officiate at the auc-tion sale of the city's lands. It was referred to the three committees in charge

It was ordered that P. J. Moran be paid in full for the city creek pipe line work. Twenty-five dollars a day had been deducted for 157 days for failure omplete the work on time.

Robertson gave notice that at the next meeting he would move to change the committee night from Friday to

OUR CANADA COLONIES.

Nine Towns, Within a Radius of 60 Miles, Located on Most Fertile Soil in the World.

Interesting Description of the Alberta Settlements and Country-Facilities and Inducements for Settlers.

Special Correspondence.

Cardston, Alberta, Canada, June 6 .--Cordston is pleasantly situated on Lee's creek, about 15 miles north of the international boundary line, and 50 miles southwesterly from Lethbridge. It was founded about fourteen years ago by that rugged pioneer and marvelous builder, Charles Ora Card, accompanied by a little band of hardy Saints. It is the center of the district lying between Lethbridge and the border, commercially and ecclesiastically, being the headquarters of the "Mormon" community in Canada. From Sterling, ast, to Caldwell, 20 miles west, and Taylorsville, 15 miles south, there d nine towns on some of the most fertile soil in the world. Cereals, vegetables and small fruits flourish to porfusion. Some portions are covered with wild strawberries, gooseberries, chokecherries, serviceberries, currat cherries, and the whole counids with grass unequalled anycelimated stock can range out er, although it is desirable all wi king stock into the country to get them there in the spring of the the temperature differs from year, as in the way of sudden changes, are shipped into Alberta from a fattened and shipped to at a profit. Any amount of first class grazing land may be had for $3 and $4 per acre, and the plan of cattlement is to fence two or three seccure subsistence for enormous herds,

ENTERPRISING CARDSTON.

Cardston contains three large merantile institutions, an extensive dement establishment, large modern oller mill, two banks, two drug steres, wo hotels, a restaurant, two livery staor four blacksmith shops, two jewelry stores, a newspaper, and umerous smaller business establishments, supported by transient business and the tributary settlements, which between 3,000 and 4,000 people. The Saints have a commodious meeting house, amusement hall and storehouse buildings, all solidly built. There is a fine public school house, and a Presby-terian church. Many modern residences are in evidence, and others in course of erection. The one great need of the town is a railroad, and the prospects are excellent for securing at least one road, and possibly two, within the next year or two. The people are enterpris-ing, fairly well to do, and their properis increasing in value every year. Leavitt, seven miles; Mountain View, 8 miles, and Caldwell, 20 miles west, tile places. Kimball, 19 miles, and Tay-lorsville, 15 miles south, are also beautifuly situated, the former lying on magnificent flat at the head, or intake of the great canal from the St. Mary's river. This canal covers the country to Lethbridge, more than 60 miles away furnishes the only water supply Lethbridge has. Aetna is distant six miles from Cardston, and is a prosperous village. Sterling is the first "Mormon" settlement the visitor strikes in Canada. It is on the line of the Great Falls & Canada rall-way, which extends from Great Falls, Mont., to Lethbridge, and is forty-seven miles north of the boundary line. Two years ago there was scarcely a sign of a house at Sterling; now the town contains 500 people. The St. Mary's river railway branches off at this point, and runs to within fifteen miles of Cardston. Twenty miles from Sterling, on this road, lies the beautiful town of Magrath, named after one of the most enterprising Canadians in the northwest, and one of the builders of the great canal. This place has also made remarkable growth, having in-creased to about 500 souls in two years. The town is situated on a broad, level plain, which is covered with a rich, dark green grass, looking for all the world like a well kept lawn, and for every foot reduced to cultivation, just that much lawn is destroyed. Crops will grow lawn is destroyed. Crops will grow without Irrigation, but mature better which since the completion of the canal may be had at a very reasonable rate. Magrath is the site declded upon for the erection of the pro-posed sugar factory, to be built within

A "coulee" in Canada is equivalent to our "ravine," and their "buttes" are our "hills." Spring Coulee, and the side tracks are nearly always filled with cars unloading settlers' effects, presenting a busy spectacle.

INDIAN "MEDICINE DANCE." The reservation of the Blood Indians forms the northern boundary of the Cordston townsite. While there your correspondent had the pleasure of witnessing the "medicine dance" of these Indians. This is an observance occurring in the spring of each year, and occupying about a week's time. The red-skins pitch a large tent near the town (for it developed there was method in their mad dance) and begin dancing early in the evening of each day, continuing until near midnight. They are not averse to admitting white people to their tent, but a semi-chief stationed at the doorway collects 10 cents from every paleface who enters. I cheerfully "dug up" the 10, and in company with a party, entered the enclosure. About a dozen besmeared and painted "braves," fantastically, though none too lavishly clad, immediately started up with a whoop and what with jumping, stamping, yelling and jigging around they appeared in their frenzy to be so many imps just escaped from the lower regions. It seemed to be an object as to which could keep this up for the longest time, but finally, after cavoring a limet to provide the could be appeared. cavorting an almost incredible length of time, the perspiration steaming from their faces and their features drawn into the most horrible shapes, one they would stop and seek their ket couches. All the female members of the tribe were gathered into a circle and beautiful (?) bedecked with most queen. surmounted by crown horns, and then, in time to a weird, mournful chant, the squaws began to move around the circle, the motion being a slow, graceful step, in which only the limbs from the knees down limbs from the knees d moved. This, I lear the propitation offered learned Was god of medicine, the queen leading in the chanted prayer. After this the bucks took the boards again for a few moments, when all at once the show stopped. The noble warriors went on a strike and refused to dance another stop unless the audience "dug up" some more "dough." After a counof war the chief took the buffalo crown and performed the equivalent of "passing the hat." He bit each piece of received and divided among his red brethren, who thereupon executed another turn at their hideous maneuvering.

One of the visiting ladies audibly wondered whether the "squaws" would again favor us, when a big, strapping buck, with war faint, eagle feathers and a fox skin down his back, and announced in the purest English: appear party withdrew through a seam in the Treaty day" is the Indians' Fourth of July, so to speak. It occurs twice a year, in January and June. On this day the Canadian government distributes $5 to every member of the tribe and the stores devote the day exclu-sively to Indian trade. Every store boils up a tub full of tea (the Indians are passionate lovers of tea), which is set out on the front stoop with a bar-rel of crackers. The Indians squat around the feast, eat crackers, swill tea and spend their money. Formerly the government paid each Indian off with a $5 bid, but soon discovered that unscrupulous traders would get the money for a return of about $1 worth of stuff. Now each redskin receives his "treaty money" in five $1 bills.

200,000 UTAH SHEEP IN IDAHO.

Many Flockmasters in This State Buying Ranches There Now.

ANXIOUS TO AVOID TROUBLE

State Sheep Inspector Lowe Reports That 52 Men are Under Arrest For Violation of Quarantine Bules.

State Sheep Inspector Thomas G. Lowe is in the city, arriving yesterday morning, says the Boise Statesman. He came in direct from Ogden, but since his last visit he has been over the southeastern portion of the state quite generally. He reports the sheep in the best of condition.

Mr. Lowe states that there are now 52 men under arrest for violating the state sheep inspection law. Of these 45 are at Malad, 2 at Bancroft and 5 at Montpelier. The men at Montpelier are charged with driving sheep into Idaho from Wyoming without first giving notice and asking an examination; the two at Bancroft are charged with shipping sheep in by rail, also without giving notification.

It has been expected that there would be trouble with the men at Malad, but a telegram was received. Maind, but a telegram was received yesterday from the prosecuting attorney there stating his opinion that all would plead guilty. The others are expected to enter a like plea. In the case from Wyoming the sheep were driven across the border of the state and started into the interior, the men in charge appearing much surprised at being stopped. Mr. Lowe stated that he did not know that there was any scab among the sheep, but the law was enacted to prevent introduction of the disease, and the only way to do was o enforce it rigidly.

The inspector states that scab being driven out of the state very sat-isfactorily. When he took his office he determined to eradicate it entirely within two years, and judging by his success so far he believes he will do it. One important result of the new law is seen in the number of Utah sheep men who are preparing to keep their flocks here. Mr. Lowe knows of several who have already bought ranches and announced that their sheet will not be moved out again, as they fear it might be possible they would be excluded hereafter. There are now some 200,000 Utah sheep in Idaho. these Mr. Lowe states that 150,000 will remain permanently.

The range is in better condition than it ever was before at this time of year. Sheep generally are in fine flesh. The recent copious rains have made the grass very plentiful, and nutritious, upon which the animals thrive. The outlook for the sheep industry is this year appealable buight. year especially bright.

THUG'S BOLD ATTEMPT.

Tries to Steal a Diamond from R. Stenzel.

R. Stenzel, the furrier, had a collislon with a thug who tried to steal a diamond from his shirt front at the Rio Grande Western depot last night,

Mr. Stenzel had just stepped on the platform of a Pullman to say good-bye to his wife, who is going east, when two men crowded close to him and one of them touched him on the chin while the other attempted to wrench the $200 diamond from his shirt front. The fellow missed the gem, however, and Stenzel made a grab for him. The other thug darted in between them and both es-

A few minutes later Stenzel pointed ut to Officer Fitzmaurice a man dressed in an ice cream suit as the man who made the bold attempt, and he was placed under arrest. The man told good story, however, and produced a licket for the east and the officer decided that he had the wrong man and let him go. When Mr. Stenzel came up town he reported the matter at the

GORDON CONTESTS.

In the assembly room of the Hammond hall last night the annual declamation contest was had for prizes offered by Dr. Gordon, founder of the institution. The contestants were Misses Dotta Turner, Irene Lake and Fannie Walters, and the prizes were $7, $5 and $3, the judges being Rev. P. A. Simpkin. Rev. Clarence T. Brown and Rev. George Balley. Much diffi-culty was experienced in making the award on account of the splendid ability of the young ladies and the similari ty in degree of excellence, but first prize was eventually awarded to Miss Turner, second to Miss Lakin and Turner, second to M third to Miss Walters.

CHRISTY'S NARROW ESCAPE. Young New Zelander Has a Novel Way of Blowing Out the Gas.

Sidney Christy, the L. D. S. ball player from New Zealand came near shuffling off this mortal coil by means of a baseball bat and a gas jet the other night down at Lehi. Christy went to his room in rather frisky mood, and by way of amusement, shied his ball batt at the gas jet and then got into bed. The bat put out the light but did not turn off the gas. Christy left the window open benefitted him to some extent, at least to the extent of saving his life.

Early in the morning Manager Bassett of the team awake and smelling gas started out on a still hunt. He traced it to Christy's room and there found the young ball tosser in a coma-tose state. The window was not open. Christy, it seems, had roused himself, a short time before and thinking the gas was coming in from the open window closed it. He will permit the gas to burn hereafter.
